

The Cycle of Change

Contemplation

No intention on behavior changing

Prochaska & DiClemente

- Precontemplation: A logical starting problem exists the person may be unaware that a point for the model, where there is no intention of changing behavior;
- aware that there is a problem, but has Contemplation: The person becomes made no commitment to change
- can make change) efficacy (i.e. the client believes s/he change is good) and increased self-Preparation: The person is intent on usually requires buy-in from the client taking action to correct the problem; (i.e. the client is convinced that the
- Action: The person is in active modification of behavior
- also transitional old ones. Per this model, this stage is occurs and new behavior(s) replaces Maintenance: Sustained change
- old patterns of behavior Relapse: The person falls back into
- Upward Spiral: Each time a persor stronger so that relapse is shorter or from each relapse and (hopefully) grow goes through the cycle, they learn less devastating

Relapse

old patterns of behavior

Maintenance

Sustained change New behavior replaces old

Fall back to exists but with no

commitment to action.

Aware problem

Contemplation

Learn trom each relapse

Preparation

action to address Intent on taking the problem.

Zion

Active modification of behavior.

The Cycle of Change

Permissions beyond the scope of this license may be available at socialworktech.com/about Adapted from a work by Prochaska and DiClemente (1983) | Ignacio Pacheco This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivs 3.0 Unported License

(cc) (+) (3c) =